Mrs. Lindley M. Garrison

been more or less interested in army affairs, although she did not spend her girl days "shooting up the Indians," as it is sometimes said of her.

In Washington, Mrs. Garrison is an important hostess. She delights in

The lives of some human beings seem to dovetail all the way through as if they were just planned that way. And so it is with the life of Mrs. Mrs. Lindley Miller Garrison. She was born in an army tent, and now she is the wife of the secretary of war.

How did it happen she was born in a tent? The answer is very simple when you know it. Mrs. Garrison's father was in the army at the time. It was during the years when the Navajos were terrorizing the southwestern section of the United States and Mrs. Garrison's parents lived in the west.

At a time when the Indians had become particularly warlike in the central part of Arizona, United States soldiers were ordered there. A white-tented city sprang up over night, and the women followed their husbands to this temporary fort. Mrs. Garrison's mother was one of these.

And so it was that one sunny morning the women of the neighboring tents were invited in to greet a tiny girl who had come to the Garrison home.

Ever since then Mrs. Garrison has this, for her great hobby is home. She is a practical housekeeper, with ideals. She likes entertaining in the informal way that insures real kindness and interchange of genuine friendliness.

How to Buy, Prepare And Cook a Fish

BY CAROLINE COE.

Almost all fish are best directly after taken from the water. The more delicate the fish the poorer its keeping qualities. White fish bear transportation poorly. Cod fish loses its delicate flavor if packed in ice and transported over the country. Rich fish, like salmon and halibut, have much better keeping qualities than the lighter kind.

Fresh fish is firm, eyes full and rather bright, and the odor, while it is always fishy, will not be disagreeable. An ordinary fish, freshly caught and cooked, will far surpass in flavor and wholesomeness a fish of rarer kind that has been kept for days or weeks packed in ice.

TO PREPARE FISH FOR COOKING.

Wipe fish inside and out with cloth rung out of cold water. Remove any scales that may have been overlooked at the market by drawing knife over fish, beginning at tail and working toward head. Incline knife towards you to prevent scales from flying.

Small fish are usually served with head and tail on. To bone a fish begin at the tail, run a sharp knife close to the backbone and with knife follow the bone its entire length, thus removing half the fish from the bones. Turn and remove flesh from the other side, pick out any small bones that remain after removing backbone.

Fashion Fads

Watermelon pink is a very pretty and a very popular color.

The overdress of some of the very newest costumes is as light and filmy as air, almost.

Black net ruffles on black taffeta are shown in a dress from Paris.

A new gown has been made without a gather in bodice, sleeves or skirt. The overskirt gets its flare by being cut in a circular piece and box-plaited.

A new Paquin dancing frock is delightfully full in the skirt and is made of the daintiest of tulle.

Scotch plaid is now the rival of the Roman stripe.
